Dr. Hujer discussed facts of mythology connected with the constellations.

The history and philosophy of astronomy was the subject of a lecture delivered by Dr. Hujer to the group.

The tour is an annual affair sponsored by the science club.

Toccoa Conference Features Variety of Mission Fields

Missionaries representing nearly every major land and type of mission endeavor combined their efforts to present a united challenge for missions at the Southeastern Regional Foreign Missions Fellowship spring conference April 23-25. Known on Bryn Hill as the “Toccoa Missionary Conference,” the three-day session was again held at the Lake Louise conference grounds located near Toccoa, Georgia.

SPEAKERS LISTED

The Rev. Elmer V. Thompson and the Rev. Paul R. Van Gorder were the main speakers for the meetings. Dr. Thompson, who has seen 22 years of mission service in Cuba, is founder and general director of the West Indies Mission. Since its beginning in Cuba, the mission has expanded to include seven other islands in its witness for Christ.

Mr. Van Gorder is pastor of the Colonial Hills Baptist Church in East Point, Atlanta, Georgia. Vitaly concerned with missions, Mr. Van Gorder has made several foreign trips in the interest of missions, and has been mainly responsible for an increase in missionary giving of his church from $310 to over $55,000 annually in his eight years’ ministry there.

Other speakers included the Rev. John M. L. Young, president of the Japan Christian Theological Seminary in Tokyo; William A. Hulet of the Far East Broadcasting Company; and Mrs. H. Edwin V. Andrews of the China Inland Mission Overseas Missionary Fellowship.

MAYNARD PRESIDES

“Our Christ—their salvation; our neglect—their damnation” was the theme of the conference, at which R. E. Maynard, Bryan senior and this year’s chairman of the regional fellowship presided. A group of nearly 40 Bryan representatives attended the semi-annual conference. A number of other F. M. F. and Inter-Varsity groups from schools of the southeastern area were also represented.
From My Heart to You

Enrollment at Bryan University has continued to increase in the last two or three years when college enrollments in general have leveled off and declined. Probably within another five years college enrollments will soar again as a result of the large birthrate increase in recent years. It is evident that we at Bryan must prepare for the years ahead, conservative estimates indicating that college enrollments will double from the current two and one-fourth million to four and one-half million in 1970. These young people will be attending some college or university, and it is the responsibility of the Lord's people to provide the right sort of college education for at least the present proportion being enrolled in definitely Christian schools. If the Lord tarries, and if we do not provide the training for these fine Christian young people, God will hold us responsible in the day of judgment.

With the increasing number of children and young people, we are seeing the Lord work in a new way among them. The possibility of national and world-wide revival lies with the oncoming generation. Already, the Lord is marvelously using the young people trained in the relatively small number of schools devoted to the highest type of Christian education. Bryan University is young and comparatively small, yet there are very few schools that can compare with it in having around 60 sons and daughters on the mission field, all within the last few years. Along with nation-wide enrollment trends, I am reminded of the fact that we are entering a period when our own enrollment will be swelled by the coming of the children of our own alumni. It becomes quite obvious that we could wisely invest one million dollars in various ways to best take care of the young people who are certainly our responsibility. Several hundred thousand dollars are urgently needed in the next two or three years.

An aunt of two of our graduates who are now on the mission field in Africa has recently written about the establishment of a memorial student loan fund. This idea is good because more students are going to need financial help in the years ahead. The establishment of a student loan fund gives the donor a sense of investing in young people themselves. We must also have buildings. We must complete the building which is under construction, and we must immediately follow with a dormitory and gymnasium-auditorium. These buildings or even sections of them would make splendid memorial structures for any who might care to erect them as such.

Faculty and staff must be housed, too, so we are reminding our friends that annuity gifts are invested in homes and apartments in faculty circle. A portion of an annuity gift is deductible as a gift in figuring income taxes. Only a part of the income received from the university on the annuity is subject to income tax.

Already designated funds for the building are accumulating, but before we can go ahead we must have all previous obligations incurred in connection with our building program paid or properly financed. Regular giving—such as the Living Endowment Plan—is necessary for current operation and for taking care of the other needs not specifically provided for.

We are quite aware that none of our plans will be successful apart from the Lord's blessings. Each of us can keep the over-all need as well as these various ways of helping before the Lord in our prayers.

HANDICAPPED STUDENT PROVES GOD'S GRACE SUFFICIENT

“God answers prayer” is an oft-repeated phrase, but it is one that means much to Carol Miesel, a freshman from Sturtevant, Wisconsin.

One morning when Carol was six and a first grader at the public school near her home, she opened her eyes, but to her amazement, she couldn’t see. Blindness had occurred overnight—when she went to bed she could see; when she awoke, she couldn’t.

Carol went to school that day without mentioning what had happened. She had a little girl friend who was so shy that she usually held Carol’s hand. That day, she led Carol around the school.

From then on until she was nine, Carol spent much of her time in the hospital. Then she started to school all over again—this time at the Indiana School for the Blind. She later attended the Wisconsin School for the Visually Handicapped and graduated from there in 1953.

The doctors said that Carol would remain completely blind, but through an answer to prayer, Carol now has a little vision.

As a student at Bryan, Carol carries a full academic load and participates in a number of campus activities. She takes her classroom notes in Braille with a special stylus and then types them. Janice Miesel, a 1953 graduate and wife of Carol’s brother John, a senior, helps her with her reading assignments. As Janice reads, Carol takes Braille notes with her stylus.

Carol attends the Latin American missions prayer group, and is a member of the Spanish Club. A soprano soloist, she is a familiar vocalist on Bryan Hill and at the Sale Creek Presbyterian Church, which she attends each Sunday.

Quimby Stresses Soul Winning
In Forensic Banquet Address

Personal soul winning was the topic of the devotional talk given by the Rev. John Quimby at the formal spring banquet sponsored by the Forensic Society April 10. Drawing applications from his own Christian experiences both here and on the foreign mission field, Mr. Quimby, a 1945 graduate, stressed the necessity of first winning a person’s confidence and then presenting an effective witness. During the message, he announced that he and his family are planning to return to Japan in June 25 for a second term of service.

Decorations for the banquet, which was held in the student lounge, were centered on the theme, “April Showers.” Special music included a piano duet by Ardís Johnson and Virginia Seguine, a vocal solo by Mrs. Edward Payne, and a cornet solo by Alva Conner. Thomas Taylor directed a skit, and Jesse Delce gave an original reading, “Opportunity for Youth.” Toastmaster for the occasion, which was attended by 56 members and guests of the Forensic Society, was Darwin Neddo.

The Preparation of the Past for the Responsibilities of the Future” was the theme of the senior class chapel service on senior Day April 17. Archie Mason introduced the divisions of the program, which had its setting around the time of graduation.

Adapting the American folk drama Uncle Tom’s Cabin to a twentieth-century setting, the class presented its farewell humorous program that evening. After the performance, the entire class sang “Auld Lang Syne” before serving light refreshments to the guests.
After-dinner Speeches Introduce Spring Forensic Program; Humorous Plays to Complete Events in Interclass Competition

To begin the annual forensic activities at Bryan, after-dinner speeches were delivered Monday, April 12, by representatives of the senior and sophomore classes. "The Nomenclature of a Pin" was the topic chosen by senior competitor R. E. Maynard. Donald Weitmer, speaking for the sophomores, entitled his speech "Driving." Based on originality, content, and presentation, the decision of the judges went to Donald Weitmer.

"Resolved: That the President of the United States Should Be Elected by Direct Vote." was the subject for the debate held that evening in the new chapel. The winning team was Martha Sheffield and Alva Conner of the junior class who contended for the affirmative. Donald Wein and Max Dunlap of the senior class supported the affirmative argument.

Book reviews, dramatic readings, declamations, and extempores were scheduled for April 2. To advertise the various events, representatives from each class constructed posters featuring the various activities.

The forensic activities will culminate with original humorous plays presented by the sophomore and freshman classes May 3.

Payne Directs Dayton G. O. C. Civil Defense Operations

In compliance with a request from the filter station in Knoxville, the Ground Observer Corps in Dayton was organized last December. Though the Dayton G. O. C. is actually a civic affair, at the present it consists of Bryan staff and students.

Edward W. Payne, mathematics instructor and manager of the university bookstore, is the supervisor for this area. Calvin Jeynes is the chief observer and Charles Moore is assistant chief observer. Other members of the Dayton G. O. C. are Herbert Friedrich, James Gould, David Ileydenburg, David Kribbs, Robert Martin, Ralph Maynard, Roscoe Mulvey, Arthur Pflug, and Thomas Taylor. These men have been given training in observation methods and are authorized as civil defense men.

In peace-time, exercises are called unexpectedly from the filter station in Knoxville. A man must get to the post on McMillion Hill north of Bryan as quickly as possible, ready to report any observations. Three such exercises have been called this year—one in February and two in March.

Good reports have been made concerning the alertness and accuracy of the Dayton G. O. C.

The observer corps, a nationwide function working jointly under civil authorities and the U. S. Air Force, began in July 1952 in answer to President Eisenhower's appeal to fill the gap that radar leaves.
